

DR. DAVID ASBERRY

MEN'S SUPPORT GROUP FACILITATOR/COMMUNITY PARTNER/LIASON

David received his Associates degree from the Borough of Manhattan Community College. He received his Baccalaureate and Master's Degrees from the College of New Rochelle. In 2012 he received his Doctorate degree in Executive Leadership from St. John Fisher College. He is the founder of Fixing Fathers Inc., which is an organization that assists men, regardless of their marital status, with building strong relationships with their children and recognizing the importance of their role as fathers. He is a member of 100 Black Men of America, Inc., Stamford, Connecticut Chapter. David made his literary debut in 1999, with Bootleg a critically acclaimed New York Times best seller. He co-authored the book with the legendary actor/comedian Damon Wayans. Harper Collins published the book. In 2001, he co-authored another comedy book entitled: What I Shouldn't Say with comedian and actor Seymour Swan and in 2006 he completed a self-help book for non-resident fathers entitled, Single Dad... Not Singled Out! In addition to the numerous articles that David has written/published on the topic of fatherhood, he is now working on his fifth book. The title for this book is: The Robert Fulton Project. David Asberry's provides community services, and support groups to assist men in the areas of his skills and specialties.